A Race with A Widow. Merciful Jehosophat and big onions, what a time I've had with that widder. We chartered an omnibus for

"What for, widder?" said I. "Oh, Jehuel, how can you ask me?"

"'Cause I want to know," said I. "Well, (blushing redder than a beet) it is such cold weather now, and the nights are so awful cold, and—oh. Jehuel, I cant stand it!" "Oh, pshaw, widder, spit it out; what do you mean?"

The widder riled; she biled right over, like a quart of milk on the fire, and burst out with-"If you can't understand me, you're a heartless brute, her lips to mine, and cooled right down. "Jehuel, dear!" said she, in an insinivatin' way, and a voice as sweet as a hand organ, "Jehuel, honey, I want was carried out in practice in the lower wards, the same ed to go to church to get mar-no I can t say it all;

I dropped-she went over me and butted that the civil and political rights of the people were ut the door of the omnibus. The strap broke and out she went-her gaiter boots higher than her head as she struck the pavement.

"Drive on!" I yelled to the driver. "Woman overboard!" cried a passing sailor. "Stop that White Coat-breach of promise-reward -Herald-publish," shricked the widder, in tones of mortal agony, while tears of blood streamed from her beautiful pug nose. "Drive on! drive on!" I shouted.

"Where to!" asked the driver. " To the devil-to Harlem-to Macomb's Dam-anywhere, so that we escape matrimony and the widder.' He started, so did the widder, and then we had it up the avenue, the buss having the start of about a hundred the conclusion is irresistible, that no despotism could yards. "Will you pay for 'em?" he said.
"Yes, yes," said I, "only save me from the widder."
By crackey, we did slide; the widow no longer gained, but she held her own beautifully. Thus we had it-out past the Red House-through Harlem-where Captain Graham, with three mounted policemen in vain attempted to catch us, he probably supposing that we were running away with some bank fund. My only hope was in reaching Degroot's ahead of her, for I knew they would hide me. We were on the bridge, and oh, Moses, the draw was up, and a sloop going ble thickness. It was used also in the Revolution. It ty; and hard, indeed, is it to struggle on silently and through, "Driver," said I, "jump that bridge and I'll make your fortune for life, sure as you're born." "I'll do it or die!" he cried. And he did it. The widder jumped after us, fell into the Harlem river, and No More Slave States.—The application of Kansas with a pro-slavery constitution, as presented by her people, and passed by the United States Senate, has been rejected in the House. The South has suffered defeat on a vital principle, involving her destiny in the Union. What five appointed Governors successively failed to achieve, the treachery of Calhoun, instigated by Southern spoilsmen, has finally accomplished. The Legislature has been given over to the Freesoilers, and thus the issue is stripped of practicable advantage, and left a naked abstract principle. Whether a State recognising slavery shall be received into the Confederacy, is the question; and this, the voice of the Northern majority, assisted by Southern Know Nothings, has decided Clouds of doubt have, indeed, been raised by politicians and thrown around the Kansas question. We have heard much of Southern fraud, and much of violated popular sovereignty. But it must be manifest to all that this is smoke and dust. It is only an old stratagem used by the Black Republicans to blind the people of the South, and divert attention from the occupation of an advanced position towards securing Southern subjection and Northern rule. Under the sway of an increasing and overshadowing Northern majority, agitation is to go on. Slavery is to be undermined, weakened and worried out. Arizona, Northern Texas and the Indian Territory, and Missouri, Kentucky, Maryland and Virginia are to come in Free States. Tennessee and North Carolina are, then, to be beleaguered, until fatigue, famine and treachery do their work. As the circle narrows, the cordon of hostile sentiment and action along the surrounding Free States will tighten upon their victim. And finally, perhaps after a desperate and bloody statesman of the North, the ruling spirit of the great "Twice had the sun gone down upon the earth, and Black Republican party. With the extinction of slave-
